"That great mystery of Time, were there no other; the illimitable, silent, never-resting thing called Time, rolling, rushing on, swift, silent, like an all-embracing ocean tide, on which we and all the Universe swim like exhalations, like apparitions which are, and then are not: this is forever very literally a miracle; a thing to strike us dumb,—for we have no word to speak about it."

The image shows a young boy, Albert Einstein, in a black and white photograph. He is looking upwards and to the right, with a thoughtful expression. He is wearing a dark jacket over a light-colored shirt. The background is a large, detailed periodic table of elements, showing various chemical symbols, atomic numbers, and names of elements. The table is partially obscured by the boy's head and shoulders. The periodic table includes elements from Hydrogen (H) to Oganesson (Og), with their respective atomic numbers and names. The boy's head is positioned in the lower-left quadrant of the image, with his face partially visible. The periodic table is a standard layout, with elements arranged in rows and columns based on their chemical properties. The atomic numbers are written in the top-left corner of each element's box, and the element's symbol is in the center. The element's name is written in the bottom-right corner of the box. The background is a light color, and the periodic table is printed in a dark color, making it easy to read. The boy's hair is dark and slightly wavy, and he has a serious expression. The overall image is a composite of the boy's photograph and the periodic table background.

MRS. SOUBY, HEADMISTRESS

"The twig is so easily bended

[She has] banished the rule and the rod;

[She has] taught [us] the goodness of knowledge.

[She has] taught us the goodness of God;

[Her] heart is the dungeon of darkness.

Where [she] shuts [us] for breaking a rule;

[Her] frown is sufficient correction;

[Her] love is the law of the school."

TO MRS. GREGORY

"The teacher who walks in the shadow of the temple, among his followers, gives not of his wisdom but rather of his faith and his lovingness.

"If he is indeed wise he does not bid you enter the house of his wisdom, but rather leads you to the threshold of your own mind."

UNKNOWN

To Mrs. Gregory who has given of her "faith and lovingness" and who has led each Harpeth Hall girl to the "threshold of her own mind," the annual staff dedicates the MILESTONE of 1961.

Tired But Proud

Not A Minute To Spare

This, the 1961 edition of the MILESTONES, represents what we, the staff, feel is a panoramic view of the students life at Harpeth Hall. The whole staff hopes that each student will enjoy the result of our efforts to edit and publish the 1961 MILESTONES. We wish to express our sincere appreciation to those who have helped us this year. Without your help the MILESTONES would never have reached the presses.

EDITOR'S NOTE

There is a great deal of planning, hard work, and worry that go into the making of a yearbook. From the first of the school year you have looked forward to the day that the MILESTONES would come out, and now that the book is published, all of us on the staff remember our experiences with pleasure.

We hope that you are pleased with your 1961 MILESTONES because it is your book. In carrying out our theme—"Time Marks the Events"—we have tried to bring to you the students' life around the clock at Harpeth Hall.

Without the help of many people this book would have been impossible. To our sponsor, Miss Kuykendall, for her loyalty, encouragement, and help, we give our deepest appreciation. To Mrs. McLean, for her aid with accounting; to Mr. Blankenship, for his excellent photography, to "Buddy" Shaw, our representative from Benson Printing Company, who helped us with planning, we give our sincere thanks. To the student body, for their cooperation and enthusiasm; and to the faculty, for their understanding and interest, we are deeply grateful.

Those of us who have worked on it have but one last wish—a wish that your MILESTONES will mean as much to you as it does to us.
